Miscellaneous
At a gathering of literary and radio personalities, a certain well-known producer was holding forth on the countless mistakes he had made in his business and how much money they had cost him.

"I declare," he announced, "I'm my own worst enemy."

"No while I'm in the room," was the rejoinder of comedian Franklin P. Jones.

Creating An Opportunity
"At her request you gave up drinking?"

"And you stopped smoking for the same reason?"

"It did. It was for her that you gave up dancing, card parties and billiards?"

"Correct."

"Then why didn't you marry her?"

"Well, after all this reforming, I decided I could do better."

ONE WAY TO DO IT
One morning Brown looked over his garden wall and said to his neighbor: "What are you buying in that hole?"

"Oh," he said, "I'm just repainting some of my seeds, that's all."

"Seeds!" shouted Brown angrily. "It looks more like one of my hens."

"It is. The seeds are inside."

Won't Be Long
At the baseball game the boss suddenly came in behind his office boy, and tapped him on the shoulder.

"This is your uncle's funeral!" he demanded of the startled youth.

"Looks like it," the quick-witted boy replied. "He's the umpire down there."

Frivolous Tars
A silly old woman took an ocean voyage. One night a terrible storm came up and washed away most of the deck fittings. The alarmed captain sent up rocket distress signals. When the silly old woman came to the deck she confronted the captain.

"Look here!" she said. "I don't think you have the time to be shooting off fireworks."

two-story brick building. The tin roof over the older part of the factory is the same one put there when that part of the factory was built 59 years ago.

M. N. Kilbrewe died in later years and the business was carried on by his son, T. J. In 1906, A. R. Kilbrewe, son of T. J., went into the business with his father and they continued to make "Kilbrewe Jeans" until the beginning of World War I. They had to stop making their widely known product because of the scarcity of wool.

Kilbrewe Jeans sold for $14.00 per dozen pairs, wholesale, and retailed for $15.00 per pair, states A. E. Kilbrewe. "We had no trouble selling all the pants we could make."

Mrs. A. M. Turner, age 72, and a life-long citizen of Newton, relates the story of a tragedy which happened at the old mill in 1891.

"One day after a very hard rain, a group of children were on their way to school. One of my schoolmates, Mattie Hayes, 10 years of age, stopped on the bridge, below the dam, to watch the rushing water down. Suddenly the dam gave way. The bridge was washed away and the girl was drowned. This was a great shock to the people of Newton," Mrs. Turner states.

In 1908, a dam was built of concrete, and still holds the water today in an artificial pond. The machinery in the old factory, Mr. Kilbrewe says, cost $15,000, but as the years passed it became obsolete and was sold for scrap iron for about $200.00.

In 1916, A. R. Kilbrewe decided to build a new dam and to use electric power for nearby towns. He built the dam near Golden's Bridge on Little Choctawhatchee Creek, about a few months to Homerville, Ga., where he has been ever since. He reports that he is well satisfied with his set-up at Homerville.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Ham and granddaughter, Jeanette, of Homerville, Ga., visited friends and relatives in Elba and vicinity several days this week.

Mr. Ham, formerly popular carrier on Elba Route 4, traded routes with S. S. Edmondson 12 years ago, going to Allapaha, Ga. and Mr. Edmondson coming to Elba. Mr. Ham transferred to Hamilton Ga. about nine months later, then in a few months to Homerville, Ga., where he has been ever since. He reports that he is well satisfied with his set-up at Homerville.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Winston, little son, Roger, Jr., and Mrs. Bona Drinkard have returned from a ten-day trip to Minneapolis, Minn., where they visited Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Bonneau and Mrs. Sadie Donehue. They visited Mammoth Cave, Ky., and other points of interest enroute.

Roger said he saw some wonderful crops and many other interesting sights but in Minneapolis it was too cool to suit him for June weather. He said they slept under blankets and people were wearing overcoats.

Crepe myrtle is in bloom during the WPA, PWA and what have you days, thousands of crepe myrtle trees were planted in Elba and they have contributed greatly toward making our city beautiful. However, many of the trees have been cut back and will not do much blooming this year.

Crepe myrtle has a decided advantage over the more popular azaleas inasmuch as whereas the azaleas bloom only for a few weeks, the almost as beautiful crepe myrtle continues to adorn the landscape for three or four months. Hats off to the lovely crepe myrtle!

Youngest Fisherman
Jimmie Lubert, two-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Marion Lubert, is laying claim to the youngest fisherman honors. His aunt, Mrs. Jake Morrow, reports that she and the Lubert family went fishing Tuesday in Faulk's lake near Opp and before the rest of the party had time to get their hooks into the water, little Jimmie had landed a fine fish and a few minutes later caught another. Needless to say, Jimmie and the whole party were delighted over the "youngest fisherman's" prowess.

Mrs. Morrow said the party caught 45 fine fish.

HOG PRICES STEADY
Hog prices at Monday's sale at the Elba Livestock Market held about steady. No one hogs sold for $20.50 compared with $20.55 per cwt. the preceding Monday. Other grades brought about the same as the preceding Monday. Dealers were in great demand and brought high prices. Cattle sold well and brought the same price as last week.

During the frontier days in Alabama the Choctaw Indians built a village on Quilby Creek in Sumpter County. The Indian name for the creek was Oskapt, meaning "cane cut there." The canes were cut by the Indians for making bow guns.

One of the most outstanding colonies of Italian farmers in this country was founded at Daphne in 1888 by Alessandro Mastro-Valerio. The original plan of the colonist was to plant vineyards to promote wine making, but with the advent of prohibition, the Italian farmers turned to truck farming.

Bellingrath Gardens, though it ranks among the nation's top gardens, is only 15 years old.

An Irishman, James Seagrave, was the first Indian Agent to come into pioneer Alabama's Creek Confederacy. He began serving sometime before 1796.

President Maury A. Williams of the Alabama Rural Electric Association of Cooperatives, announced this week that final plans have been completed for the Statewide "Electric Fair" to show in connection with the annual meeting of the Covington Electric Cooperative, Andalusia, on July 9-9. McWilliams stated the Electric Fair, a complete farm equipment and household electrical appliance show, would visit Andalusia for 100,000 people.

"This show," McWilliams said is the biggest thing that ever happened for the rural people of the state. The organization has spent no money and is composed of students whose scholastic average is in the upper first of their class.

SHORT STORY

Infectious Laugh

By Richard J. Wilkinson

It was Ethan Pryor's laugh that first attracted Abigail to him. When Ethan laughed every one else laughed. The sound had that mirthful, appealing quality that was infectious. It was good to hear. It gave you a feeling of well-being.

This all happened in 1939, when Ethan's retail antique business was nothing but a side-line. It was easy to laugh then. They were a jolly couple.

In 1931 Ethan's retail antique business dropped off from one-half its top amount to one-third, then to one-quarter.

That year passed and the next. The Pryors didn't find it so easy to laugh. They gave up their seven-room apartment and moved to a less expensive one. In January of 1934 they moved to a single room in an unfashionable part of the city. Ethan was barely making enough to keep them from starving.

Abigail hunted for a week and eventually won for herself a job. It wasn't much of a job. She sat behind a glass window all afternoon and evening selling tickets for a stock company performance. The stock company wasn't doing so well. It looked as though it might fold up any day. But it paid $13 a week and would have to do until she could get something better.

Inspired, a little ashamed, Ethan went job hunting himself. He hunted a week, two weeks, without success. He began to brood. Abigail did her best to cheer him up, to get him into a happy frame of mind.

"Let's hear the old laugh ring out, darling, please, frame of mind is half the battle," she sat on the arm of his chair. "Tell you what, let's celebrate. Let's take $5 and go down to Tony's. We can have a gay time for a change."

THAT'S WHAT TONY'S. T drank wine and ate a big dinner. They danced. They sat and watched the floor show. It wasn't a bad floor show. Among other things there was a comedian. The comedian was sad. He wasn't funny. But Abigail laughed. She laughed as though she thought he was tremendously funny.

Ethan looked at her. A fond light came into his eyes. She was trying to be gay. She was doing all she could to bolster up his spirits. He could at least help.

Ethan laughed. It was the old time, mirthful, appealing laughter. It rolled out and filled the room. Others heard it. Others laughed. They couldn't help it. They laughed with Ethan. The comedian was inspired.

After the show a man came up and sat down at Ethan's and Abigail's table. Abigail introduced him as the owner of the stock company show where she sold tickets. His name was Jones.

"Listen," said Mr. Jones. "We'll pay you $5 a night to come and laugh at our show. It's supposed to be a funny show. You can put it across."

Ethan scratched his chin. He looked at Abigail. He said: "Well, I dunno. For $40 a week I might consider it."

"Sold!" said Mr. Jones. Ethan looked at his wife when he got home. "You planned it!" he accused.

"Sure," said Abigail. "When you have something it should be cashed in on. You can laugh your way to riches, my dear."

Times were getting better. People were buying antiques. By the beginning of 1939 he was doing quite well. That summer he enlarged his shop.

"Well," said Abigail, happily, "I guess we laughed our way through that depression all right."

Ethan kissed her. Then he threw back his head and began to laugh. He laughed loud and long. "There!" he said. "That laugh isn't going to cost you any more. From now on I laugh because I want to and free of charge. Honey, I love you."

"Ditto," said Abigail.
